Opening Remarks

Okay, Here's My 10

Recently on MySpace—and that new Internet thing the kids are into, Facebook (check it out, it's gonna be huge)—people started sharing their “10 Albums That Shaped My Teenage Years” lists.

Of course, I'm friends with a lot of music journalists and musicians, so this sort of thing appeals to me. Like most social media posts, this requires little or no thought, and that appeals to me, too.

And I love lists. Soon, I hope to expand on this concept with “10 Showtime After Hours Softcore Porn Movies That Shaped My Teenage Years.”

These aren't necessarily my favorite albums, just the ones that served as the soundtrack for my high school years, 1981 through 1992. Just kidding. I graduated from Henry A. Bradshaw High School in Florence, Alabama in 1985. Barely.

Peter Gabriel, Peter Gabriel (1980). The one with Pete's melted face on the cover. I've owned this in just about every format in which it's been issued, though only the recent 45 RPM double-LP vinyl version measured up to the sound of my old worn-out cassette. About a year ago, I listened to it every day for a week and never got tired of it. My pick for the greatest record of...ever.

Michael Jackson, Thriller (1983). Soundtrack to every high school dance of the period. The DJ would often play through the whole album. Nobody complained.

Fast Times at Ridgemont High (Soundtrack) (1982). The ultimate slap in the face to my generation, four LP sides devoted mostly to artists that peaked in the '70s. Nevertheless, it remained in heavy rotation, thanks mostly to Jackson Browne's timeless “Somebody's Baby.”

Prince and the Revolution, Purple Rain (1984). This one still conjures up happy memories of teenagers singing along to “Darling Nikki” in the back of a church van. Screw you, Tipper Gore.

This Issue's Contributors

Nikki Hedrick ("Destin Gets Funky Again"), from Seagrove Beach, is a photographer and longtime Beachcomber contributor. She co-owns 850 Music and Entertainment, and is currently glued to her computer catching up on photo editing.

Joni Williams (Brew Review) enjoys eating, drinking and hitting the road on the spur of the moment, which is pretty much what she writes about, too.

Paula Hilton ("I'm Rich!") is the founder of Act4Murder, a comedic murder mystery troupe that has been entertaining the Emerald Coast since 2003.

Samantha Lambert (People) has been back in Florida for five months now and is really enjoying the weather. She loves interviewing people and writing stories for Beachcomber. She also enjoys visiting parts of the area that have grown tremendously since she grew up here in the 1970s.

Kimberly White (Book Review) began her journalism career in 1997 and spent the ensuing years working as an editor, reporter, radio newscaster and producer at media outlets across the country. She is an avid reader and lover of all things German shepherd.

Hunter Forbes ("Ducks, Redfish and Stingrays...Oh, My!") is owner and guide at 30A Guide Service and Southern Whitetail Outfitters. He's also a freelance outdoor photographer and lives in Santa Rosa Beach.

Jenna Taylor ("Ducks, Redfish and Stingrays...Oh, My!") is an avid outdoorswoman, content creator and writer. Born and raised in Kentucky, she now lives in Santa Rosa Beach.

Kellyanne Bartleson (Family-Friendly Events) is the creator of EmeraldCoastKids.org, a comprehensive online resource guide for all things kids, teens and families in Walton and Okaloosa counties.

Debbie Thomas (Wines to Try) is a graduate of Choctawhatchee High School and Florida State University. She is a former high school band director and is now an operating partner at Twisted Grape Cafe & Wine Bar in Shalimar.

Bruce Springsteen, Born in the U.S.A. (1984). Other than Nebraska, the only thing the Boss released during my formative years. I didn't get to see the E Street Band live until 2009, but it was worth the wait. They didn't perform any songs from this album.

The Police, Ghost in the Machine (1981). Because my older brother blasted this from his bedroom, like, every morning for a year.

Men at Work, Business as Usual (1982). Forgive me, I grew up during the golden age of MTV. I've still never tried a Vegemite sandwich. (Runners-up: Scorpions, Love at First Sting; Van Halen, 1984.)

Asia, Asia (1982). The dumbed-down prog rock supergroup kicked ass on their debut album. A couple years later, guitarist Steve Howe's old band Yes came back hard with 90125 and "Owner of a Lonely Heart," with axeman Trevor Rabin filling Howe's spot.

I saw three quarters of the original Asia lineup (minus Howe) in Biloxi a few years ago, and it was a great concert. Apologies to the guy sitting in front of me, whose smartphone footage was ruined by me screaming along to every song at the top of my lungs.

R.E.M., Reckoning (1983). My "I was into them before they were popular" pick.

Sesame Street (Soundtrack) (1970-something). Because I was a late bloomer, and because those wonderful people taught me how to count to 10.

Miramar Beach

A Superior Air Conditioning recently announced that they are again teaming up with Beachy Beach Real Estate to offer a one-of-a-kind opportunity—a jingle contest for elementary school children to show off their creative talents and win a $1,000 donation towards their school's music department.

Children enrolled in Bay, Walton and Okaloosa county schools, kindergarten through fifth grade, are eligible to enter in groups of five or less and submit their own rendition of the A Superior Air Conditioning's company radio jingle "Keeping Me Cool." Videos of the entrants performing their submissions will be uploaded online for friends, family and individuals in the community to vote for through the submission platform.

Kids and parents can fill out the appropriate release forms and register to enter at ASuperiorAC.com. Once registered, entrants will receive contest updates and will be able to listen to, as well as download, the jingle off the website. Anything goes in regards to style, arrangement, genre, a cappella, with instruments, even costumes. Submissions are also not expected to be high tech productions and can be as informal or formal as desired.

Once registered, video submissions can be uploaded at <http://woobox.com/ony2te> beginning Jan. 30.

Entrants will then share the specific voting links, and the entry with the most likes/votes will win special prizes, as well as the $1,000 donation to their school's music department. The winner will be announced Feb. 24.

"We are so excited to once again partner with our friends at Beachy Beach Real Estate and hold our jingle contest to support music education in our local community," says A Superior Air Conditioning owner Jimmy Thorpe.

Hilary Farnum, broker and co-owner of Beachy Beach 30A, adds, "A large part of our success as a company has been working together with other businesses to put our values in action. When we met Jimmy Thorpe a few years ago, we knew this was a guy that had the same vision for our area."

To learn more about the contest, connect socially on Facebook, visit ASuperiorAC.com, or call 850-258-3225.

FRESH SEAFOOD?

One of the first questions people ask when they visit our area is “How can we be sure we’re getting fresh seafood?”

That’s an excellent question. There is a good chance that the seafood you will be offered traveled farther than you did. In the state of Florida, even though we are surrounded by water, more than 90% of the seafood sold this year will be imported from other countries.

Throughout the United States, the huge majority of seafood is imported. Most of it is mislabeled. Frozen seafood is sold as “fresh” and imported seafood is sold as “local.” According to Oceana, 93% of fish sold as red snapper is actually some other species. 57% of tuna sold at sushi bars throughout the country is not tuna. Most of the tilapia served in this country comes from Viet Nam and Thailand and much of it is farmed in waters with sewage run-off and the source of feed is pig feces.

Harbor Docks has been selling fish through its wholesale market since 1981. We sell to markets across the United States and Canada. We also sell to select restaurants along the Gulf Coast. Harbor Docks contracts with over 100 commercial boats to insure that we have an adequate supply of fresh fish.

We invite you to dine at our restaurants – Harbor Docks, in the heart of Destin, and Camille’s, overlooking the Gulf in Crystal Beach. But we’d also encourage you to try any of the wonderful, independent, local restaurants in our area that are committed to serving Florida seafood. We know who they are, because we sell them their fish.

Check our website to find out which restaurants sell certified Gulf-to-Table fish from Harbor Docks Seafood Market.

Big Sugar’s Slime Flows North to Florida’s Capitol

By Carl Hiaasen, Tribune Content Agency

The paid soldiers in Gov. Rick Scott’s war on the environment are aligning to block state efforts to purchase any farm lands south of Lake Okeechobee, which means Floridians can look forward to more summers of slime.

Nightmare algae blooms, vile and job-killing, are destined to be one of Scott’s legacies. Next June, when the St. Lucie estuary again turns puke-green and the oyster beds die, the light-footed governor will be nowhere in the vicinity.

Neither will the tourists.

The blooms are caused by billions of gallons of fresh water that are pumped from Lake O during the rainy season. Loaded with phosphorus and other pollutants from surrounding areas, the lake discharges are mainlined toward both Florida coasts, bringing ruin to saltwater habitats.

Senate President Joe Negrón, who lives in Stuart—basically Slime Central—wants the Lake O outflows diverted, cleaned in reservoirs and sent south to the Everglades.

The plan, supported by many scientists and conservation groups, would require purchasing 60,000 acres from agriculture. Only eight years ago, U.S. Sugar embraced such a concept, calling it a “monumental opportunity to save the Everglades” and struck a deal to unload 187,000 acres.

The company infamously reneged, and it owned enough lawmakers to kill the deal. It definitely owns the governor, who’ll need Big Sugar’s money when he runs for the U.S. Senate in 2018.

As Senate president, Negrón is one of the most powerful figures in Tallahassee. He’ll need all the clout he can muster for this battle, to which he arrived late and as part of the problem.

Negrón has displayed little resistance as his party’s leaders have subverted Amendment 1, which 75 percent of voters approved in 2014 for the purchase of conservation lands. And he was all-in last year when the Legislature and governor neutered water-quality laws to allow agricultural corporations to monitor their own pollution on the honor system.

Negrón now needs Amendment 1 funds to buy farm acreage for conversion to reservoirs. He’s under heavy hometown pressure from Treasure Coast residents, who are getting clobbered financially by the algae outbreaks.

Meanwhile Big Sugar has mounted a PR campaign framing Negrón’s land-purchase plan as an attack on farming and the communities near Lake Okeechobee. This is industry-scripted melodrama; not all cane acreage is highly productive.

Opposition to Negrón’s plan also comes from the South Florida Water Management District, which at one time relied on actual experts on water management. Real scientists, if you can imagine such a thing! Those were the days.

Since taking office, Scott has loaded the boards of all Florida’s water districts with lawyers, developers, Realtors, agricultural and industry advocates.

Funding has been cut, and experienced staff members canned.

For instance, the previous executive director of the South Florida water district had worked in that field for two decades. He was replaced by lobbyist/lawyer Pete Antonacci, who’d formerly worked as Scott’s special counsel in Tallahassee.

It is Antonacci now leading the district’s fight against Negrón’s cleanup plan. Last week he told a Senate committee that buying more land to hold Lake Okeechobee’s overflows would only slow down current restoration projects.

He also said state and federal authorities should focus cleanup efforts north of Lake Okeechobee, such as replacing residential septic tanks with sewers.

That is, almost word-for-word, Big Sugar’s position—yet it’s coming from the chief of a state agency that’s supposed to act in the interests of all Floridians.

Enjoy the Show, Come Early for the Art

There's a new show in town, and a new pop-up gallery to go with it. Thirty-five local artists join Emerald Coast Theatre Company's performance of Bakersfield Mist to bring a beautiful barrage of abstract expressionism to audiences Jan. 27-Feb. 19 at 560 Grand Boulevard Upstairs in Miramar Beach.

Playgoers are encouraged to arrive early for each show to allow extra time to view the art in a space that transports guests to a big city warehouse.

The professional comedy-drama centers on an unemployed bartender and an art expert who begin to question the true definition of art and the authenticity of people, while the industrial-style space above Grand Boulevard's retail stores comes alive with 80 new works of expressive art shown and available for sale, with proceeds benefiting ECTC's educational theater.

"I am amazed at the variety of talent displayed for this show," says artist and gallery coordinator Lori Drew. "The play and the art play so well together. I think this is going to be our best presentation yet, and we are all hoping sales exceed our expectations—for both the artists and the theater company."

Abstract expressionism is a post-World War II art movement in American painting, developed in New York in the 1940s. "What better way to experience the local art world's take on this style than in a setting similar to one they might find in New York," says Drew. "Our goal for the art collection is to get viewers talking, to have them look deeper into each piece, and by coming early to the performance for the gallery, it acts as a 'warm-up' for the play itself, adding a new dimension to the whole experience."

To learn more, email lowkylzart.com. The theater space will be open an hour before each show, scheduled for Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m.

Destin Gets Funky Again

Story and Photos by Nikki Hedrick

“We are trying to go back to the roots,” explains Chuck Stiles of the new Graffiti & Funky Blues Shack location that will open Jan. 30.

The restaurant and music establishment first opened in 1995 in Destin, and then in 2006 at the Village of Baytowne Wharf. Now, both of those locations are permanently closed and Stiles is putting the finishing touches on transforming a Chili’s location into a Graffiti & Funky Blues Shack—complete with many of the fixtures and items of interest that gave the previous locations their charm.

“We were Graffiti before we were Funky Blues Shack,” says Stiles of the business’ evolution. “We became the Funky Blues Shack because we were losing customers on wait. So I kind of progressed, and then put a guitar player outside, and in the summertime people were dying out there. So I poked a hole and we did that.”

The business expanded, taking over the open space next door on two occasions. But Destin's changing business landscape began to drive more traffic to the harbor area, and Stiles let go of the location. It changed hands several times until its recent closure.

Stiles remains positive about the opportunities a new location can provide. "I found a spot that I feel is centrally located to everything and gives us a fighting chance," he says.

Changes include having the restaurant portion and the music venue portion behind the same door. After 9 p.m., the lights are turned down and the stage is lit up, a simple transformation that helps serve as the barrier between the two concepts.

"We want to be for everybody. Graffiti, when we started that, it was for kids—so we still want to be that family friendly restaurant by day and a nighttime venue."

Other changes include a larger kitchen, leading to a more versatile menu that will include small plates, gluten free options, and some health conscious choices.

Stiles is looking toward reclaiming Funky's crown as a must-visit music destination, by supporting local and regional bands who are focused on original music. Also in the works—resurrecting Funky's famous open mic nights, which played a prominent role in the formation of many area bands.

"I had my reasons for selling at both," says Stiles. "But here I feel like we're on equal footing to generate the business. As long as we offer a good product, good entertainment and friendly people, we should be fine."

On March 6, Beachcomber will be descending on the new venue for the Ninth Ever Beachcomber Music Awards. Stiles is happy to host the event, sharing the impact this publication has had on the business through the years.

"Chris (Manson) has been such a big supporter of ours," he says of our editor. "At the very beginning, Beachcomber helped us to be the success we are."

For the new Graffiti & Funky Blues Shack, the proof will be in the coming weeks. But Stiles is happy with the response and feedback he has received from the community so far—especially those who have stepped into the new space. "The end result is people coming in telling me they love what they see. And they say this one feels the best."

Beachcomber Profiles* — Nick Horton

HOMETOWN: St. Louis, Missouri.

AGE: 32.

PROFESSION: Singer-songwriter.

RECENT ACCOMPLISHMENTS: I have released five music videos on YouTube, with two of them reaching over 100,000 views. I recently launched a reality TV show called Starving Artist, putting out two episodes and currently working on the third. My song “Get Up” hit the radio and became number 88 on the request lines just last month. I was featured in the Fall 2016 issue of VIP Destin magazine as an “artist to keep your eye on,” and since then I have been featured on other local TV and radio shows.

QUOTE: “Live for now. Not tomorrow, not yesterday...now.” – Eckhart Tolle PROFILE: I realized I wanted to play music and make my mark in the industry at the age of 15. I have not stopped since, and my new mission is to do my part and change the world.

FAVORITE FREE PUBLICATION: Beachcomber!

* Inspired by the late, great Creem magazine.

And the Nominees Are... The Ninth Ever Beachcomber Music Awards

By Chris Manson

Last fall, we asked Beachcomber readers to submit nominees (themselves or other people) for the Ninth Ever Beachcomber Music Awards, to be held at the new Funky Blues Shack in Destin (see Cover Story) Monday, March 6.

All qualified candidates were included on our online nominating ballot earlier this month, along with a write-in option. Thanks to the hundreds (alternative fact—thousands) that voted in the first round. These are the top three (four in a few categories due to ties) in each category, and you can vote now at beachcomberdestin.com.

This year, we have two new reader-suggested categories, and we've eliminated the Best Bluegrass Artist category since we are only aware of one band that would be eligible for that one.

Good luck to everyone, and thanks for all you do. Let the bitching begin!

Bleeker

Erase You
Five Seven Music

Drummer Dustin Steinke may very well be regretting his recent move from Bleeker Ridge to Sixx A.M., seeing as how Bleeker, as the band is now known, is finally on the cusp of hitting the big time with Erase You. Musical chameleons, Bleeker handily serves up a deliciously varied menu of sounds—alternative, garage, grunge, blues, punk and just a pinch of pop—along with some quaking riffs and hardcore drum thrashings. Standout tracks, besides the now familiar “Highway,” include the title track, “Free,” “Where’s Your Money,” “I’m Not Laughing” and a cover of Elvis Costello’s “Radio Radio.” This album isn’t just good, it’s crack to the ear—highly addictive and worthy of repeat plays.

- Joni Williams

Disasterpeace

Singles
Independent

Once upon a time, video games had to be simple out of necessity. Both the images and the music were created with size limitations in mind—mass storage would come later and open up those limits. From those humble beginnings, musicians are continually creating under the 8-bit or chiptune genre. Disasterpeace is one of the more well known in the genre, and for good reason. Singles is a reflection of his favorite and most popular tracks, and a great introduction to a growing sub-genre of music.

- Nikki Hedrick

Lights with Fire

Wet Hair
Independent

Atmospheric indie music from Pensacola fits the definition of art rock to a T. It’s about experimentation, unconventional directions, and evocative music. It combines fringe folk, punk, and rock with some contemporary rock sensibilities for music that is personal and daring. Lights with Fire plays well with the genre, and I hope we hear more from them.

- Nikki Hedrick

Kristen Long

Gypsy Soul
Independent

Combining soulful storytelling with jazz flourishes, Long crafts an album full of life and emotion. When musicians have a connection to live theater, something in their music reflects that—the clearly pronounced words and the epic rises give way to something more dramatic than modern song structure. It crafts this sonic world that resonates deeper than a three-minute song should. Long takes all those influences, and carefully pours them into Gypsy Soul.

- Nikki Hedrick

John Scofield

Guitarra de Jazz
Warner Music

I will listen to whatever Scofield plays. In Guitarra de Jazz, I figured he was going Latino. That expectation was shattered with the first track (“In the Cracks”), which chunked its honky tonk self right down. Next up was “Best Western,” a mournful lament that would do Marty Robbins proud. At that point I abandoned the labels and just let my fellow Dayton, Ohio native have his musical way. The 34 tracks here are like session whiskey. Don’t start unless you have time to give your undivided attention. Only then will the flavors reach the far corners of your palate.

- Bruce Collier

Claire Van Kampen/ Musicians of Shakespeare's Globe

Twelfth Night & Richard III
Globe Music

Shakespeare recently celebrated the 400th anniversary of his shuffling off this mortal coil, and among the many tributes paid was this recording by musical director Claire Van Kampen on the Globe Music label (yes, that Globe). The 24-track playlist includes works by period composers (John Dowland, Thomas Morley, et.al.) and Van Kampen herself, all of which served as background music to two Globe stage productions. If you are used to seeing “screwed-up Shakespeare” (thank you, Nathanael Fisher) on film and stage, dip your ear into this genuine Elizabethan vibe. Feel free to get up and pavane the night away.

- Bruce Collier

The xx

I See You
Young Turks

I See You, the xx’s third album, sees the British electro-pop trio at both its most confident and vulnerable. They retain the intimacy of their signature soft, spare sound that they honed on their first two albums, but they have expanded it to make each soaring beat and tender lyric feel like an emotional proclamation instead of a place to hide. I See You is a space for the xx to shout their feelings of heartbreak and uncertain love when they have always whispered, and their shedding of inhibitions allows the listener closer access to the band than ever before.

Live Music Review

Jamey Johnson

Club LA, Destin

On January 18, country fans flocked to Destin’s Club LA to see Jamey Johnson take the stage.

The night began with Chris Hennessee, a member of Johnson’s band, as the opening act. Hennessee warmed up the crowd with guitar in hand, singing stories about his life and how he came to tour to Johnson.

While the club piped in classic country songs—prompting singalongs from the crowd—Johnson’s immense band took the stage. I assumed he would be playing with a band, but I wasn’t expecting it to be 10 members strong, including two percussionists and two horns. The band gave extra life to Johnson’s stripped down songs.

With 11 Grammy nods and numerous CMA and ACM awards under his belt, Johnson puts the focus on the power of a song. While the crowd knew every word and hooted when it came time for their favorites, Johnson’s understated demeanor meant everyone was truly there for the love of country music.

Beachcomber Music Award nominated harpist Katie Ott performs and gives a brief history of her instrument.

Congratulations to 2017 Beachcomber Music Award winner Katie Ott, who's up for Best Classical Artist along with the Northwest Florida Symphony Orchestra and Sinfonia Gulf Coast. "My dad (Dr. David Ott) says you spend half your time tuning the harp and the other half playing out of tune," Katie told us back in 2008. Katie, let's catch up soon.

Davenport, a recent Alaqua Animal Refuge Pet of the Week. Meet your new best friend every Friday at beachcomberdestin.com.

OPENING SOON IN THEATERS

JAN. 27

Gold. Matthew McConaughey at his best.

Oh, wait, we're thinking of the car commercials.

Resident Evil: The Final Chapter.

Yeah, that's what the Friday the 13th people said back in the '80s, then they proceeded to make a dozen or so more installments.

FEB. 3

The Comedian. Robert DeNiro as an aging jokester. We'd hoped this would be the second coming of Rupert Pupkin, but the early notices don't look too promising. Too bad.

Rings. Not directed by Peter Jackson. Not based on a book by J.R.R. Tolkien.

The Space Between Us. "Get closer to me..." – Seals and Crofts.

UPCOMING DVD/BLU-RAY/VOD RELEASES

JAN. 31

Jack Reacher: Never Go Back. Shorty's back as Lee Child's iconic badass.

Masterminds. Zach Galifianakis and Owen Wilson in an alleged "comedy" from the hack that gave the world Napoleon Dynamite.

FEB. 7

Almost Christmas. Like we needed an excuse to leave the tree up for another month.

Loving. Acclaimed historical drama starring Joel Edgerton and Ruth Negga.

Tee Is for Therapy

By Joni Williams

For most golfers, the sport offers friendly competition, a little exercise and a great way to spend a leisurely day on the greens. But to the combat veterans who are a part of Fairways for Warriors, it's all that and more.

The Orlando-based nonprofit uses golf as a healing therapy, and for some veterans, its effectiveness has been nothing short of life changing. Now, thanks to the start-up of a local chapter, its services are available to heroes along Florida's Panhandle.

"It's only fitting that Fairways for Warriors would start a local chapter here," says founder Tom Underwood. "I used to be up there in the Panhandle all the time. I'm real familiar with the area." Underwood acknowledges the area's high military population and numerous golf courses. Putting the two together fits the nonprofit's mission to a tee—it seemed almost inevitable for a local chapter to take hold.

Underwood came up with the idea of utilizing golf for its therapeutic benefits after witnessing his own father struggle with what is now called Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) after serving in World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars. But because he was unaware of the diagnosis, much less any effective treatments for it, he instead took to self-medicating with alcohol and heavy cigarette smoking—vices Underwood believes significantly shortened his father's life.

More than that, Underwood became convinced his father's downward spiral could have been eased with non-traditional therapy—one that provided social camaraderie and all around good times. Then he had an idea. "He loved golf," Underwood writes of his father on the organization's website. "And if there had been a program to incorporate this therapeutic sport into his journey towards healing, I think his life story would have had a dramatically different outcome."

Since launching in 2010, the nonprofit has come to incorporate additional therapies into their strategy for healing. One of the most promising is ART (Accelerated Resolution Therapy) that has shown encouraging results in initial research tracking its effectiveness as a treatment for PTSD.

"It's amazing how well it works," says Underwood. "Many of our combat veterans were helped in their first session." He was equally enthusiastic about Panama City Beach therapist Dale Heppe, who works with vets locally. "The cool thing is, he's not just a therapist, he's also a veteran who likes to play golf."

Golf is still front and center at Fairways for Warriors and participation is high, even among the staggering number of veterans who've lost limbs to combat, women as well as men. Kelly Smith, for example, was shot five times resulting in the loss of her left arm. Yet she's learned to adapt and enthusiastically hits the links on a regular basis.

Fairways for Warriors partners with courses to make the game more affordable, too. Locally, Tiger Point offers warriors a special, discounted rate of $15. And a Crestview course has a $10 price point in the works. Enthusiasm and participation has been strong as golf serves as a pleasant diversion while giving warriors a chance to socialize with other combat vets who can readily relate to what they have gone through. And perhaps, most importantly, continue to struggle with.

"Sometimes the physical injuries are the least of it," says Underwood, discussing the psychological fallout many vets experience after surviving combat. "You can get a new limb but you can't get a new mind."

He tells of one vet, Juan Velasquez, a proficient soccer player who almost went pro. Instead, he served his country in Afghanistan as an Army engineer and not only sustained injuries, but also lost three of his buddies. Upon his return to the states, he became reclusive and withdrawn to the point that "his neighbors thought his wife was a single mom," says Underwood. "He just never left the house."

All of that changed with Fairways for Warriors, which offered therapy and support for Velasquez as well as his family. As Underwood points out, "It's not just the vet who's affected, it's the whole family." He also stresses that Fairways for Warriors is a fully comprehensive veterans association.

That means frequently going the extra mile whenever possible, working to secure housing for homeless vets or providing vehicles to those lacking transportation. "Golf is just a vehicle to get the (vets) together," says Underwood. "We do so much more than that."

Often, combat veterans who have successfully sought the services of the organization pay it forward by becoming counselors themselves. "Because we have so many who are helped by our program, a lot of them want to give back," says Underwood.

The organization depends on donations and special events, like an upcoming Atlanta golf tourney in April, for funding. Overhead is kept low by utilizing donated professional business services such as advertising, and a staff largely comprised of volunteers.

And that includes Underwood. Though working tirelessly for the organization since its inception in 2010, neither he nor his wife draw a salary. Paid staff consists of two recent hires, both part-time. Underwood says this is how Fairways for Warriors is able to spend only five percent of its income on operations, with the remaining 95 percent going directly to the vets.

FWB Native Roberts — Serving His Community for 30-Plus Years

By Samantha Lambert

“Keep your eye on the horizon” is the mantra of newly installed Greater Fort Walton Beach Chamber of Commerce Chair Bill Roberts. Born and raised in Fort Walton Beach, Roberts has spent most of his life working to make his hometown a great place to work and live.

Roberts was born in the Fort Walton Beach Hospital that was originally on Brooks Street in the downtown area. His father, Billy Roberts, worked with his brother Paul at Roberts Drug Store on Highway 98. Roberts is a product of the Okaloosa County School System and attended Florida State University.

After Florida State, Roberts started working at Sears Roebuck and Company. It was there that he got his start in the insurance business when he went to work for Allstate. He would work for Allstate for 30 years.

In 1971, Roberts married the former Debi Hansen. Bill and Debi have two sons—Robbie (44) and Drew (36)—and six grandchildren. Debi has been the registrar at Liza Jackson Preparatory School for the last 16 years. The couple have been married for 46 years.

In 1985, Roberts began thinking about running for the City Council in Fort Walton Beach. His father had served as a member, and was also mayor of Fort Walton Beach. Roberts ran for Council and won. He would serve for one term on the Council from 1985 to 1989.

“While I was on the City Council, I was elected chairman of the Community Redevelopment Agency,” says Roberts. “During my time on that committee, the city purchased six acres of land in downtown Fort Walton Beach that became the Landing. That was one of the most meaningful things I was part of while on the Council.”

In 1989, Roberts ran for mayor of Fort Walton Beach and won. After serving one term as mayor, Roberts stepped away from politics for a while. In 2002, he decided to get back into politics and ran for Okaloosa County Commissioner. He won and represented District 3 until 2012.

“District 3 covered an area from the Kenwood subdivision in Fort Walton Beach northward to Baker, Holt and Milligan,” says Roberts. “I learned a lot about the north end of Okaloosa County and its beauty. It was a tough job, but I met so many good people.”

In 2013, Roberts went to work for Barnes Insurance and Financial Services, where he is currently the managing director at the Fort Walton Beach location. For the last few years, Roberts has become more involved with the Fort Walton Beach Chamber of Commerce.

He had previously served on the Chamber’s Liaison Committee while on the Okaloosa County Commission. He became a member of the Chamber’s Board of Directors and Chairman Elect in 2016. In January, Roberts was sworn in as the new Chairman of the Board of the Greater Fort Walton Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Elizabeth Chestnut, the Director of Administration and Social Media Manager for the Chamber, says, “Bill is absolutely wonderful to work with. He has a great heart and interest in the Fort Walton Beach community, and I cannot wait to see what all he does as chair in 2017.”

“My husband has always been very sincere about what he did in city and county government and did not let people influence him,” says Roberts’ wife Debi. “He really cares about his community. I have always supported him and am so very proud of him.”

The Greater Fort Walton Beach Chamber of Commerce was founded in 1946 by a small group of businessmen. Today, it is the largest Chamber of Commerce from Pensacola to Tallahassee and boasts 2,000 members.

As for keeping an eye on the horizon? “I want the Chamber of Commerce to continue to give value to its members and their businesses and to be a constant in our community,” says Roberts.

Ducks, Redfish and Stingrays... Oh My!

By Jenna Taylor
Photos by Hunter Forbes

Four girls who love the outdoors travel to sportsman's paradise—a/k/a Santa Rosa Beach, Florida—for three whole days of duck hunting, bowfishing and chasing redfish? That sounds like a recipe for a damn good time.

And that's exactly what went down.

We had planned this trip months in advance, when I told them I would be moving down to Florida. The perfect opportunity to have the girls down for some outdoor activities that wouldn't be in the middle of nowhere, which is what we were used to. Population 25 towns with one subpar restaurant to eat at vs. Florida beaches and restaurants galore? I'll let you decide.

December was relatively hot based on the historical average. That was perfect for us, as we had planned to jam pack hunting and fishing from dusk until dawn for those three days.

We started the morning after the girls arrived. First up was duck hunting.

Duck hunting in Florida would be unlike any other waterfowl hunting that the girls had ever done, so Hunter and I were especially excited to take them out.

It was a 3:45 a.m. wake up call. We got up, put our camouflage on, grabbed coffee and sleepily ventured out.

As Hunter and our friend Clint were setting out the eight dozen decoys, we girls got out the stools, put up our panel blinds, propped our guns up and patiently waited for the birds to come. Buffleheads, redheads and bluebills came in that morning. It was a morning that we won't forget.

During our ride back, we were pleasantly surprised by the hundreds of rays we saw up on the flats. There is a great migration that occurs twice a year—north in late spring and south in late autumn. Which is why it was such a surprise to us.

We quickly pulled back up to the dock, loaded up the bowfishing rigs and headed back out.

A day filled with laughter, sunshine and lots of success. It was December 16, we were listening to “Rockin’ Around the Christmas Tree” and reeling in rays. What more could you ask for?

Redfish. That’s what more you could ask for.

Fast forward to the next day.

Rain may have been in the forecast, but we pushed through it and decided to fish anyway. We figured that we could get away from the rain if need be. We ventured out midday to search for the infamous red drum, and boy did we find them.

I wish I could tell you that was the most interesting/exciting moment of the day but shortly thereafter, we found ourselves quickly running away from the black clouds that surrounded us. Crouching down behind Hunter to keep away from the rain and hoping it would stop at any moment, we finally made it back and sought refuge under the dock.

Needless to say, we ended the day dripping from head to toe. And it was all well worth it.

During those three days, we frequented Don Pedro’s for breakfast, strengthened friendships and laughed our tails off all while watching the sun rise and set in the beautiful Choctawhatchee Bay.

It was exhausting. Waking up before 4 a.m., duck hunting, fishing, and then a group dinner every night. Lacking sleep, but making up for it with memories made. Those were a long three days, but well worth every minute.

Thank you, 30A Guide Service! Until next time...

Our Own Bruce Collier Makes His EC Theatre Company Debut

Bruce Collier and Teance Blackburn in Emerald Coast Theatre Company's BAKERSFIELD MIST. Collier is a longtime contributor to this publication.

Emerald Coast Theatre Company (ECTC), the nonprofit professional theater company based in Miramar Beach, presents Bakersfield Mist as the final main stage performance of the company's 2016-17 season.

The production opens with a preview Thursday, Jan. 26, and runs through Sunday, Feb. 19. Evening performances are Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. Matinees shows are at 2 on Sundays. All 16 performances will be staged at the new ECTC performance space at Grand Boulevard in Sandestin.

Inspired by true events, Bakersfield Mist is a hilarious comedy-drama by award-winning playwright Stephen Sachs that follows unemployed bartender Maude Gutman and art expert Lionel Percy as they begin to question the true definition of art and the authenticity of people.

Maude has purchased a painting for a few bucks from a thrift store. Despite almost trashing it, she's now convinced it's a long lost masterpiece by Jackson Pollock worth millions. But when world-renowned art expert Percy flies over from New York and arrives at her trailer home in Bakersfield, California to authenticate the painting, he has no idea what he is about to discover.

The play—which garnered the Boston Theatre Critics Association's Elliot Norton Award for Best New Play in 2012—is directed ECTC's producing artistic director Nathanael Fisher who has been involved in professional theater for more than 20 years.

"This play is the perfect comedy for our community, which is home to so many talented visual artists and art fans who love and follow their work," says Fisher. "I think audiences will appreciate how this play challenges the basis of one's perspective and shows how the brush strokes of trials and tribulations create the canvas of one's life."

The two-member cast consists of Teance Blackburn and Beachcomber Contributing Editor Bruce Collier.

Collier makes his Emerald Coast Theatre Company debut as Lionel Percy. A native of Ohio, Collier has a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in theater from Wright State University and a Juris Doctor degree from Tulane Law School in New Orleans.

In addition to college and non-professional productions, Collier has performed professionally in summer stock in Ohio, at the Alabama Shakespeare Festival, and at New Horizons Theatre in Michigan. He has appeared in numerous productions at the Seaside Repertory Theatre, including The Fantasticks, Picasso at the Lapin Agile, True West, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, Proof, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf and A Beach Home Companion, which he co-wrote.

He has portrayed both Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt, as well as Winston Churchill in Nancy Hasty's We Were Soldiers Too. Collier is currently writing a one-man show about Churchill.

Blackburn has been performing locally for more than 15 years. Some of her favorite roles include Louise in Always, Patsy Cline and Boochie in Den of Thieves (also with Collier). She is a comedian at heart and performs with ECTC's house improv troupe. Blackburn is also a regular contributor to TMZ Live.

Bakersfield Mist performances run approximately 80 minutes with no intermission. The show contains some profanity and is not recommended for children under 13. Doors open 30 minutes prior to performance time.

Tickets are $25 for adults, $20 for seniors, and $15 for students. To purchase tickets or make a tax-deductible donation, visit emeraldcoasttheatre.org or call 850-684-0323.

Time Travelin' Man: 15 Questions with Fraser Sherman

Interview by Chris Manson

1. Where do you live?

Durham, North Carolina. I moved up here in 2010 to be with my fiancée LeAnn. We married a year later.

2. What's your background, as far as the time you spent on the Emerald Coast?

My dad was civil service. We moved from England to Fort Walton Beach back in 1969. I graduated Choctaw in '76, graduated Oberlin College in 1980, then came back to Fort Walton Beach. I'd probably still be there if I hadn't met LeAnn.

3. Tell us about your new book.

Now and Then We Time Travel looks at films and TV about time travel, changing history and alternate history. The text focuses on films and television series from the U.S., Canada, England and Japan (because of how popular anime has become). One appendix tackles everything I could find from the rest of the world. Another looks at material with a very slight time-travel element—like someone miraculously getting to time-travel at the end and fix everything, like the first Christopher Reeve Superman film.

4. What prompted you to take on the time travel genre?

I knew there were recurring elements in time travel films, such as, Oh, I left my great love in the past, but look, here's her exact double in the present, I'm happy again! I thought it would be interesting to look at the films and study the elements in detail. I discovered, for example, that movies and TV focus far more on changing someone's personal history (Back to the Future, for instance) than anything else. Which makes sense—it's a visual medium, so personal drama works better than abstract discussions of theory.

5. How much time did you spend watching films and TV episodes, and when did you sleep?

It took two years to work on the book. I thought I was giving myself a very generous deadline, but there was much more material than I realized. I was watching various TV shows right up to the end. But I did squeeze in some sleep.

6. Did you discover a new favorite movie while researching the book?

Quite a few. Nostradamus, with Rob Estes and Joely Fisher, has time-traveling fallen angels coming from the past to kill enough good people in the present that Satan can win the apocalypse. It ain't art, but it's fun. The Visitors, from France, is hysterical slapstick about medieval characters wandering around the present. And the TV series Day Break and Odyssey 5 are both excellent.

7. And what was the worst thing you watched?

So hard to pick, because I watched so much crap...I might go with The Final Countdown because it's got all the ingredients for success, including good actors, a decent budget and a good concept (modern-day aircraft carrier goes back to Dec. 6, 1941), yet it's completely pointless. After lots of debate about changing history, they get sucked back to the present before the Japanese attack so nothing really happens.

8. What is your personal favorite as far as time travel flicks?

It's hard to pick but I'd go with either Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure or the 1960 The Time Machine with the most elegantly designed time machine ever. But don't hold me to those. For TV, undoubtedly Doctor Who.

9. Who are some of the writers that inspired you?

For film reference books, Bill Warren's Keep Watching the Skies, a history of 1950s science fiction films, is probably my gold standard. For fiction, the fantasy writers Fritz Leiber, Jorge Luis Borges and Diana Wynne Jones.

10. What else are you writing for these days?

At the moment, I'm mostly writing fiction. I just had a story come out in the online magazine Lorelei Signal. I also self-published an ebook on the Bond films, Sex for Dinner, Death for Breakfast.

11. What do you miss most about the Emerald Coast?

All my friends, definitely.

12. Are you already working on your next book?

Yep. I'm spending most of my time on Southern Discomfort, a fantasy set in Georgia in 1973.

13. What advice do you have for aspiring writers?

Have fun. The odds are against becoming obscenely wealthy, there's lots of rejection—the best reason for becoming a writer is that you enjoy it.

14. If you could time travel to any era, what would it be and why?

I'd pick the 1970s, simply because I was a teenager and I'd love to compare my memories of the era with my adult perceptions.

15. What do you like best about writing?

The moment I get the most fun out of is when I'm rewriting and I finally see how everything is supposed to fit together. It's incredibly satisfying, whether I'm writing fiction or nonfiction.

Watt Key

Hideout
Farrar, Straus and Giroux
The award-winning novelist's latest follows the adventures of a 13-year-old boy who heads out alone into the swamps and marshes surrounding his home in Pascagoula, Mississippi. Setting off in his new boat, Sam navigates through the murky waterways in search of a mysterious body that authorities have been unable to locate. What starts out as a quest for fame turns into a fight for survival, as Sam finds himself becoming more and more entangled in the intrigues of the swamp—and the life of a lone boy he discovers eking out a sorry existence in a deserted fish camp. Key specializes in southern fiction geared toward school-aged youth.

Soul Jazz
Xlibris
Porter's Soul Jazz seeks to fill what he, as a fan and music producer, perceived as a gap in 20th century jazz history. He defines Soul Jazz in the preface as "music of the organ groups, funky piano trios, and tenor sax men of the fifties, sixties and early seventies." Since he worked with a lot of the musicians he chronicles, Porter blends research with reminiscence. There's a good (accelerated) history of jazz post-World War II, some political commentary and a skillful interweaving of the stars (e.g., Grover Washington Jr. and Ramsey Lewis) with their producers and promoters.

Krazy: George Herriman, a Life in Black and White
HarperCollins

Cartoonist George Herriman created one of the first superstars of the comics—the androgynous, grammatically challenged feline Krazy Kat. My experience with Krazy and her associates Ignatz Mouse and Offissa Pup was limited to animated cartoons. Apparently these were pale versions of an undiluted original. Drawing on newspaper archives, birth records and memoirs, Tisserand establishes connections between Herriman's art and his life, the centerpiece of which was that Herriman, a mixed-race child of New Orleans, "passed" as a white man, enjoying social access and opportunities he would never have otherwise. No wonder Ignatz loved throwing bricks at everyone.

You'll Want to Eat Your Vegetables Here

I have always been leery of restaurants calling themselves “organic” or “natural.” In my experience, they often serve food that tastes more like penance than lunch, accompanied by a dipping sauce of New Age sermonizing. One usually leaves hungry, which constitutes Mission Failure in my book.

Before I went to Cafe Organic, I took the time to reconnoitre the website and the menu (I do that with every restaurant I visit). I was encouraged. There were plenty of appealing food choices, even a hamburger. And make no mistake, I love fruits and vegetables. My love stops short of worship, that's all.

Cafe Organic is on Truxton Avenue in FoWal, off the beaten path, in a quiet little neighborhood of residences, small businesses and offices. It's a residential-looking structure, with a long dining room inside, a counter with stools, and an outdoor dining area in the back. The tables are brightly painted, and the walls are decorated with nature-themed artwork. Colors are light and restful, making it quiet, tranquil, and a peaceful spot to sit and relax.

The menu is detailed on a wallboard, and there's a smaller menu listing specials. I had decided in advance to order a pizza and some takeout for later (I was dining alone that day), but one of the specials caught my eye.

I love fish cakes. I make fish cakes—from salmon, crab, and any other fish I can form into seasoned patties. The special was fish cakes. One of the staff told me they were freshly made and personally vouched for their quality. The pizza went untasted, and I ordered the fish cakes with a side salad of quinoa and a blended-up “green drink” called Mango Momma, a mix of mango, banana, almond milk and kale (which supplied the green).

To go, I chose a portobello mushroom melt with Swiss cheese, avocado, tomato and greens on a sprouted bun, and a ginger miso salad with spinach, beet, carrot, cucumber, sprouts and almonds, with grilled chicken and ginger miso dressing. I also got a Tropical Wonder smoothie with mango, orange, pineapple and coconut water. Dessert would be a “pick me up cookie.”

I sat and sipped my drink while they made my lunch. The drink was just slightly sweet, allowing me to taste the fruit and the bite of the kale, an improvement over heavily sweetened “health” drinks I've had elsewhere. Some nice '70s-era rock kept me company, and I soon smelled the aroma of ginger and herbs, rather Thai and very appetizing. A few customers came and went (I was dining early in the day) and the staff was both friendly and efficient. This, I realized, is a serious restaurant, not an outpost of chic.

My fish cakes and salad came, on a real plate with silverware—welcoming, like eating at a friend's house. Two hot cakes of fish sat on individual beds of greens, laced with fresh herbs and Asian-inflected seasoning, topped with mango. The quinoa salad was superb—perfectly cooked grains, subtly spiced and begging for seconds. I tried not so subtly to get the dressing recipe for it, and got a friendly but diplomatically evasive response. I don't blame the chef—I'd keep it to myself, too.

But I hope to duplicate it someday. I already have the quinoa.

Other menu choices include a Momma Earth wrap (chicken or tempeh with vegetables and herb dressing), cheeseburger (grass-fed, hormone-free beef), tuna salad, pesto pizza (the one that got away), and southwest wrap with black bean hummus and chipotle. Dinner size salads include kale, Mediterranean, and market salad, with assorted protein add-ins and dressings.

Other green drink and smoothie options include Florida Delight (orange and banana), green lemonade, sweet-n-green (strawberry pineapple), chocolate chip almond, creamy cocoa coffee, and assorted juice shots.

There are also daily soup, salad and side dish specials. On some evenings the cafe is open for happy hour and dinner with music, serving selected beer and wines.

My family and I ate the sandwich and salad later. Both stayed fresh and good, the portobello meaty and savory, the miso salad a riot of red, green and orange that made me feel extra healthy all next day. The cookie was a cross between a brownie, an oatmeal cookie and a Fig Newton, naturally sweet and chewy.

If I entered Cafe Organic slightly prejudiced, I came out well-fed and very glad I'd eaten all my vegetables.

Million Dollar Baby, Million Dollar Brews

By Joni Williams

Like a lot of other hopheads, we've known for some time that PROPS Brewery's beer tastes like a million bucks. And now they've put their money where our mouths are.

PROPS has undergone a million-plus dollar expansion to keep up with ever-increasing demand that we were told by a staffer has made them the area's largest brewery between here and Birmingham, Alabama. Impressive, but just as exciting from a beer lover's point of view, is the increasing variety of brews they continue to roll out.

Their beer list now runs the gamut from the spicy Blonde Sanchez to the freshly squeezed flavored Citrus Mistress and the traditional dark Dunkelweizen. We counted well over a dozen, including longtime staples like their renowned golden Blonde Bomber Ale and Flying Coffin IPA. The canned versions have been available in various markets for some time, with a porter and brown ale slated to hit shelves soon.

Making all this beer takes space. Lots of it. Way more than they could squeeze out of their original location just west of the Brooks Bridge in Fort Walton Beach. Though the original location carries on with full food and beer menus intact, PROPS recently opened a massive distribution center on Lovejoy Road, along with a nearby brewery and taproom where beer is made in the back and served up front. Talk about fresh brewed.

Though they don't serve food at this new location, plans are in the works to host Food Truck Fridays, with mobile vendors offering a variety of noshings. Unlike so many places, the new taproom is also said to be cool with BYOE (Bring Your Own Eats). Got a sandwich in your satchel or pretzels in your pocket? No need to hide them here.

But we weren't there for food, we were there for beer. Why else would you go to a place that's like a piece of beer heaven right here in the F-Dub? Already familiar with the Blonde Bomber Golden Ale, we shook things up and dug into a flight of four new-to-us brews.

Always lovers of classics, we first hit the PROPS Hefeweizen, a deep golden wheat ale that's not as yeasty or banana-ish as other Hefes. It's hearty yet smooth, and goes down easy. Likewise, the Twin Props, a cleverly named double IPA, is rich with hops and a classic kick of bitters, but nothing is overdone. And with an 8.3 percent ABV, it's almost too easy to drink.

We switched to darks with the Prop Oil Porter, soon to hit shelves in cans. Earthy and rich with flavor that isn't too figgy, we're now officially fans even though we're super picky about porters. We also tipped back PROPS' velvety 4 Kings—malty, slightly roasted and definitely hearty. It's one of those meal-in-a-glass brews that we so love.

What makes PROPS' beers so enjoyable is, no matter how light and mild or earthy and robust, they're each well-balanced, smooth and fresh tasting. And what makes visiting PROPS so enjoyable—besides the yummy beers, that is—is its comfortable, casual, never-met-a-stranger vibe.

The beertenders also know their stuff. Don't know squat about beer? No worries. They'll patiently help you find what appeals to your taste or, just as readily, sense of adventure. You may even get an impromptu tour of the back of the house for an up-close view of the magnificent gleaming vats, finishing with a blast of Antarctic air from the gigantic cooler.

Despite their rocketing success in a mere half-decade, PROPS remains a locally owned endeavor by four former military dudes—no corporate sell-outs here. And props to them for keeping prices unbelievably reasonable and the service top-notch and personal despite their recent million-plus dollar investment.

Having mastered the recipe for success as well as great brews, it's obvious that—just like its most famous ale—PROPS is golden and not to be missed.

Bartender of the Issue

Jessica McNeal
Helen Back, Destin-Fort Walton Beach Airport

Jessica is originally from Frankfurt, Germany, and has been living in Florida for the last 10 years or so. She's been bartending and waitressing since age 16. "I love what I do," she says. "You get to meet interesting people every single day. The person sitting across from you at the bar is never the same. Everybody has a story, and I love hearing them."

Her favorite drink to make for her customers? Bloody Marys and/or Long Island Iced Teas.

Sadly, her time at Helen Back's airport location is coming to an end after five years. Their lease is ending, and a new company is moving in—probably by the time this issue drops.

"It's bittersweet that it's ending here, because we all became family here," says Jessica. "I know the Helen Back family will figure out how to relocate us, or write recommendations for our next adventure."

Wines to Try — Pinot Evil

Catchy name aside, Pinot Evil—whose label includes the See No Evil-Hear No Evil-Speak No Evil monkeys—is actually a nice Pinto Noir.

Many winemakers call Pinot Noir “the heartbreak grape” because it is so delicate. The back label of Pinot Evil refers to this characteristic, since its thin skin is easily affected by pests, disease and temperature changes.

Pinot is French for pinecone and describes the shape of the grape clusters on the vine. Pinot Noir is one of the Noble Grapes—along with Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and Syrah—in the red-black grape family.

The smooth, silky taste of Pinot Evil is nice for sipping but also complements mild red meats, soft cheeses or dark chocolate.

The local vendor for the wine is Republic National Distributing Company. It has been available at McGuire’s in Destin, but it would be our pleasure to serve you a glass or bottle at the Twisted Grape Wine Bar in Shalimar.

I'm Rich!

By Paula Hilton

No, I didn't win the lottery, although my family and I do continue trying. Our "corporation," as we call it, invests each week in the Powerball hoping to bring it home one of these days.

Hasn't happened yet, but I'm still rich. Because living here in Beachcomberland, I've found that no matter what I want to do—go out for dinner, go shopping, go out for a walk, I'm always rich in choices. No, we don't have 821,000 restaurants like New York City, or a mall comparable to Minnesota's Mall of America, but we do have plenty of great restaurants, great shopping and great people.

We also have a ton of beautiful real estate. Vacation homes prevail. This lends itself very well to my small acting troupe, Act4Murder. Every year I host an elegant awards party—the Act4Murder Accolades, on par with Hollywood's Academy Awards. We have amazing food, music, and trophies for the winners, even a red carpet and a photographer to capture each guest's arrival and every minute of our extravagant event.

And the location of the event changes each year because of the large number of gorgeous homes that are available to rent. We've had our awards event in Destin, 30A, Navarre, Miramar Beach, Dune Allen Beach, Santa Rosa Beach, and this year we're taking it out to Pensacola Beach for the first time.

I use VRBO.com (Vacation Rentals by Owner—I have no affiliation to the company, but have had nothing but good luck finding the perfect house each year using this site) to search for property that will suit our needs. We really only need three things—a big kitchen, a big gathering area with a large flat-screen TV and DVD player, and a view of the Gulf of Mexico.

The big kitchen is necessary because I somehow manage to talk my family into helping me prepare food for the party every year. My mom, sister, niece and two daughters are usually there with me all day long preparing around 20 different finger foods for the event. Between the deep-fat fryer, stove-top grill, skillets, pans, oven and numerous crock pots—plus all the platters of cold food that has to be assembled—you can imagine we need a lot of counter space and room to move around.

The big gathering area is needed because we have around 30 guests at the event, and I assemble an awesome (Academy Award-worthy) slide show presentation of all our shows from the past year, which they enjoy on the big-screen. I give out trophies to everyone afterwards, so we need room for the acceptance speeches. And it wouldn't be a party without dancing. Watching a bunch of actors showing off their moves on the dance floor is not only amusing but a great way to end the evening.

And the view? That's really just for me. Taking a walk on the beach the day after the party is the perfect way to unwind and start thinking about next year's event. After all, we live in Beachcomberland, rich in beautiful beaches and breathtaking views of the water.

See? I told you I was rich!

Eight million people are affected by the decisions of the South Florida Water Management District, but Rick Scott has turned it into a naked political lobby for the sugar barons, who are already rich from government crop subsidies.

Big Sugar is one of the biggest donors to the governor's PAC, so it's no shock to see him sell out. He's been doing it since Day One.

Ironically, Negron, too, has benefited from the calculated generosity of the sugar industry, which over the years has showered him and his political action committees with hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Unlike the governor, though, Negron owes his seat to constituents in one geographic district. Unlike the governor, Negron can't hop on his jet and vanish when there's a manmade environmental catastrophe in his backyard.

He's got to come home and face the folks whose lives are upended by it.

And those folks don't want a repeat of last year's nightmare. They want all that lake water pumped south through the glades, not to the coasts.

Which leaves Negron uncustomarily at odds with Scott and Big Sugar. How hard he fights will show what he's made of, and where his true loyalty lies.

The green that runs through Tallahassee is a different shade than algae, but it's just as slimy to the touch.
